

Which is the correct phrasal verb?

1. My boyfriend is always complaining. I can't put up/pick up with it anymore – I'm going to break up with him.
2. My girlfriend and I broke up/broke down. We wanted different things from our relationship.
3. If I don't get a break from work soon I'm going to break out/break down. I'm so stressed!
4. I feel like my life is just the same problems repeated again and again. I need to break out/look out of this pattern. Maybe I should change jobs.
5. When I don't know the meaning off an English word, I look it out/look it up in the dictionary.
6. Abdi fell asleep for most of the flight, and when he woke up and looked out/looked up the window he could see Mount Fuji below.
7. Sam and Steve were hoping to take a couple's vacation, but just couldn't find anyone to look after/look at their children.
8. Sharla was looking for a pen in her desk when she came over/came across her old diary.
9. I overslept! I should have got up/stood up at 9, but it's already 11!
10. We carried over/carried out the teacher's instructions carefully.
11. I didn't take all my vacations this year, but it's ok. They will carry over/carry out into next year.
12. When you get to the hospital, you will need to fill in/fill out a few forms.
- 13 This house is a mess! We really need to clean out/clean up.

14. It's important to back up/back out your computer hard drive every few weeks.

15. Shaun was only going to have one drink at the party, but he ended up/gave up drinking until 3am and falling asleep on the floor.

Find more free English activities at <https://denwasensei.com/category/free-english-activities/>